The Roofs are in Northern Brazil working in cooperation with the OMS affiliate denomination Igreja Missionária (Missionary Church). This is a pioneering work, the denomination's first church plant in this region of Brazil. Belém is the capital of the state of Pará making it a strategic location for reaching the denomination's overall goal of establishing vibrant, solid Gospel preaching churches in every region of the country. As their slogan says; "Leading Brazil to an Encounter with God."

David is the co pastor of the church. On a rotating schedule with the Senior Pastor he routinely preaches in services and teaches Sunday School. He also coordinates the Christian Education courses of the church. His background in construction as a carpenter is continually tapped not only for the many maintenance projects that come up on a missionary field but also serve the church well coordinating the construction of the new church building being built by volunteer teams and church members.

Conce helps lead the women's ministry of the church. They meet on a regular basis for crafts, Bible Study and prayer. She also is the graceful hostess to the many colleagues, seminary students and teams that come through contributing to the work.

Andrew is involved in the music of the church regularly playing his guitar during the varied programs and services throughout the week.
