STATISTICIAN

Please use care analyzing the year-to-year comparative statistics included on the summary page preceding the detail statistics per church report. The number of submitted annual statistical reports is trending downward over the last three years. That is disappointing. Missing statistical reports hamper year to year comparative and trending analysis. Admittedly, church attendance statistics are inherently fuzzy and not always representative of the impact a church has on its community. However, the operation of a denomination, or any organization, requires the collection of some indicators of activity and the trending of those indicators can determine the health of an organization. I encourage all churches to complete and remit their annual statistical reports on a timely basis.

Encouraging statistical trends can be seen in reported Worship service attendance, professions of faith and number of employees. The drop in Sunday School attendance and the large decrease in the number of employed pastors is certainly a result of the drop in returned statistical reports. However, the EC Church is not immune to the downward trending in Sunday School attendance that is occurring nationally in Protestant churches.

The drop in church income of over $4M from 2020 is from a reduction of bequest income and a decrease in major building project donations. The 2021 combined Sunday morning Worship service and Sunday School offering is up slightly from the comparable income categories from 2020. Compared to the slight increase in Sunday morning Worship service attendance the reported increase in offering makes sense. Less than twenty-five churches reported expenses over revenues for 2021. About half of those churches recording a loss were the result of a major capital project expenditure this year but the revenue was raised in prior years or loan proceeds that were not included in revenue. The increase in money sent to help others is amazing and a testament to the heart of the EC Church.

Thanks to all the churches that responded to the annual statistically survey. I hope in future years more participation can be encouraged. If anyone has a suggestion on what statistic(s) to gather and report on that would be beneficial to your church or ministry, please contact me.

Kevin Henry, Conference Statistician
